BRANCHES THROUGHOUT THE WORLD

THE WORLD is desperate for men to fill key industrial positions. We are entering a new exciting age where opportunities abound and well-paid jobs are waiting. If you will spare one hour a day for interesting study we will help you to train and qualify at home for one of these top-salary posts. "British Institutes" is very like a university—in size, in scope, and in the standing of its tutors. But it teaches you at home in step-by-step illustrated lessons, so that you can continue in your present job until ready for the "plum" positions of this new scientific age.

PHILOSOPHY Paper 8 Plato

22nd June, 1962, 2:00-5:00 p.m.

Answer FOUR questions Describe the main features of Plato's ideal republic. How would you relate these to the basic ideas of the 'foundation myth' and the 'myth of the cave'? Discuss the influence direct or indirect of the following people upon Plato's thought: Homer, Heraclitus and Parmenides, Socrates.

Why did Plato believe that a man should be just even though he could be unjust without being eaught.

What are some essential differences between the Platonic and the Chinese Commune in respect of education, the family and the rights accorded to the workers and the leaders?

Did Socrates win his debate with Thrasymachus? Give detailed reasons for your answer.

Explain the statement: "Plato's Apology is his portrait of the ideal philosopher and the model of the philosopher-king." Why did Plato place Democracy below Timarchy and Oligarchy in his list of imperfect forms of government? In terms of your total knowledge of Plato (from your reading about) him and your reading of his dialogues) outline what you consider to be the major principles and insights of his philosophy.
